As part of the 21st Century Schools Initiative to construct nearly $1 billion in new or renovated schools in Baltimore City, the school system has identified school buildings which are no longer needed for school use. This presents an opportunity to envision new uses in these surplus buildings to complement the surrounding communities. The Baltimore City Planning Department will meet with community members and stakeholders to explore prospects for re-use which could include a different government use, sale or lease of the building for private redevelopment, or demolition.
